Bridge Bank Provides Sorrento Capital $6.2 Million Credit Facility

New Working Capital Line Strengthens Sorrento's Balance Sheet and Fuels Continued Growth

San Jose, CA – February 4, 2010 – Bridge Capital Holdings (NASDAQ: BBNK), whose subsidiary is Bridge Bank, National Association, a full-service business bank headquartered in Silicon Valley, announced today that it has provided a $6.2 million self-liquidating credit facility to Irvine, California-based Sorrento Capital, a privately held asset management firm that provides consumer-facing financial services through its business partners and consumer direct channels.

“At a time when most banks have been forced to the sidelines or have voluntarily left the lending arena all together, we are pleased to find a new commercial banking partner in Bridge Bank that has the resources and expertise to service an emerging market business,” said Tyler Aldous, Chief Financial Officer of Sorrento Capital. “Sorrento’s subsidiary organizations have grown tremendously, hiring over 300 new employees in the past six months, and we see further expansion and growth in both the short- and long-term future as the financial markets dislocation runs its course. This facility will free up working capital and allow us to not only assist more consumers, but also to keep growing and creating more jobs in this troubled economy.”

According to articles published within the past two months on CNNMoney.com, the lack of available credit to businesses is preventing owners from creating jobs. A December 19, 2009 article states that “businesses are still struggling to find financing” and that “many banks are reluctant to lend” to businesses in the current economic climate. Furthermore, a January 4, 2010 article cites data from the Treasury Department stating that, “from April to October, the nation’s largest banks shrunk their collective business lending balance by 4.3%, cutting $11 billion in credit.”

Sorrento Capital and its wholly owned businesses, Mortgage Outreach Services, ReviseMyLoan.com, and Consumer Outreach Services are focused on assisting and enhancing the financial health of consumers while helping investors, lenders, and servicers to proactively address and resolve complex borrower issues.

“Sorrento Capital is uniquely poised to help homeowners participate in some of the government sponsored programs aimed at providing mortgage relief and we’re pleased to be helping them to keep providing much-needed solutions to consumers and businesses,” said Scott Chamberlin, Senior Vice President and Market Manager at Bridge Bank, N.A. “Sorrento Capital is a great addition to our growing portfolio of clients in Southern California as we continue to evaluate opportunities in this recovering marketplace.”
